

Music played during football games:

In NFHS (National Federation of State High School Associations) high school football, music played by bands or through sound systems is generally allowed during stoppages, but not during live-ball situations (which includes in-between plays). If music interferes with play or communication, a warning is issued, and a second offense can result in an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty against the offending team.